Safety Director Is Believed Target Of Bootleggers

NILES, O., Aug. 18.—The home of Safety Director O. O. Hewitt was almost totally wrecked when dynamited early today.

Miss Ruth Hewitt, daughter of the director, was dazed by the blast but other members of the family escaped. The windows of the home were shattered by the explosion and houses in the neighborhood were slightly damaged.

Hewitt has been active against bootleggers for the last few weeks. He has personally led police in several extensive raids.

Mrs. Hewitt suffered a slight nervous shock as a result of the explosion.

Investigation by police showed the bomb had been placed against the front door. That section of the house was damaged most.

The bombing was the fourth here in a year. The other blasts at the home of the Mayor, Police Chief L. J. Round and another on the east side.

Police are searching the wreckage trying to find a piece of the bomb.

A woman living near the Hewitt home, told police she heard an automobile stop before daylight and a moment later drive away. This automobile was believed to have been used by the dynamiters. Nearly all of the furniture in the Hewitt home was wrecked. Dishes were broken and pictures knocked from the walls.

AMERICAN SERVICE IS LEADING WORLD INTO BETTER LIFE

Sir Esme Howard Praises Raleigh In Address

MANTEO, N. C., Aug. 18.—The imperialism of Sir Walter Raleigh has resulted not only in the development of America but also in the growth and spread through America of a new ideal of industrial and international peace, Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador declared in a speech here today.

Sir Esme spoke at the second day's celebration of the 339th anniversary of the birth of Virginia Dare, first white child of American nativity. The speech was delivered on Roanoke Island, site of the ill-fated colony founded by Raleigh in 1584, which was wiped out without a trace after only a few years of existence.

Comparing Raleigh with Cecil Rhodes as an empire builder, Sir Esme said:

"I am far from upholding everything that was done by the first empire builders of any race. They were often selfish and brutal and cruel in their dealings with the aborigines. They abused the power given them by their superior civilization, but can any one seriously maintain the theory that it would have been better for the world and humanity that the uncivilized and barbarous continents should have remained uncivilized; barbarous and with their great natural resources undeveloped, without any of the benefits of modern science—for that is what the wholesale condemnation of that much abused word 'imperialism' leads us to if followed to its logical conclusion."

For the savagery of plundering tribal life, such empire builders as Raleigh in America and Rhodes in South Africa substituted "peace, law and order and a progressive utilization of the riches till then hidden in the ground," the ambassador said.

The material development of America is of secondary importance Sir Esme said—"I confess that I get a little wearied of statistics of miles of railway, tons of iron and steel, etc."

The real service of American civilization he said is "in leading the world into a new era, into a better way of life than provided we can keep the ideal before our eyes as well as the merely practical, will make for a great spiritual birth and help us to that universal peace both at home and abroad for which all men in all countries are truly longing."

PRESIDENT SILENT IN MATTER OF SMALL TALK SAYS SENATOR

Coolidge Talkative On Things of State, Rotarians Told—Tribute Paid To Newspaper Correspondents

An interesting insight into the character of President Coolidge, was given in the "close-up" afforded Xenia Rotarians and guests by U. S. Senator S. D. Fess, Yellow Springs, at the Elks' Club, Tuesday night.

The President is usually regarded as silent—he is silent as far as small talk is concerned," Senator Fess declared. "He doesn't like it. He likes you to indulge in it for his amusement but he will not engage in petty conversation."

"He will answer 'yes' and 'no' and you can go ahead. While most people think they have to agree with others, the President doesn't. You are entirely wrong if you think President Coolidge never talks. As a matter of fact, he is very talkative, but only on matters of interest."

"When he was thrust into the Presidency by the death of President Harding, he had said nothing, the newspapers could quote with interest attached. Since then the public has been given many ways of understanding his attitude."

Senator Fess, in the past, has been invited to "drop in" at the White House and go over matters with the President. They laughed together and then went to the White House library. Here President Coolidge did most of the talking, for three hours. Senator Fess only interposing an occasional question. The President's answers showed a hesitancy, the speaker said. There was no forced attention on the President's part, and he was completely absorbed in each particular question of his guest.

"His answers are clear-cut and show he thinks things out," he said. "The President's attitude meant to Senator Fess that the Chief Executive did not care what the public thinks, that if the solution at stake was right, as he saw it, he'd do it that way."

"The President is silent as far as small talk is concerned, but talkative and concise on things of state," the speaker said. Senator Fess was a guest at the White House two weeks last winter, after the death of Mrs. Fess. He found Mrs. Coolidge delightfully congenial and cordial. Her attitude and personality counter-balance that of the President, with whom one doesn't feel so free, he found. Senator Fess, during his stay, occupied the famous Blue Room, where Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation, and slept in the four poster, brought there by Andrew Jackson.

The Senator described the President's daily routine, while at the White House. It was through Senator Fess's suggestion that the President was permitted to abandon the handshaking during the reception of several hundred school students each year. There are other troublesome and wearing details which the President is forced to attend, that should be gone away with, in the mind of the Senator, such as signing commissions, etc.

"They are wearing the very life out of each President," he said, "although President Coolidge doesn't show the strain like his predecessors, particularly Harding. President Harding gave too much of himself, while President Coolidge is wise enough to reserve himself. While President Harding would stop to chat with his friends, President Coolidge, shakes hands, and moves the crowd along."

The Senator described the White Pine Camp, the Summer White House and his recent visit there. He paid high tribute to the correspondents covering the President's movements. "The men that are assigned there are the best. There are no other men in their profession equal to them. Their work is the highest goal of the reporter's profession. They are honorable and know what to say and write."

He said his official files were open to the Washington correspondents at all times, because he depended on their trustworthiness. "They never ask the President improper questions—they are too honorable. There is no 'smart-alecky' business when they meet the President at White Pine Camp two or three times a week or at any other time."

He told of the day's program at the President's retreat. "I don't know as to the truth of the President's big catches," he said. "But I do know he and I fished during my visit, and the fish showed no disposition to bite."

The President is widely read and is able to discuss all questions and gives his judgment freely, the Senator said. He concluded his address by recounting several amusing tales told on the President, giving examples of his pure fund of humor.

Senator Fess received the wraps of attention of Rotarians and their guests. His talk was the chief feature of the evening, following a chicken banquet served by Jacob Kany. C. S. Frazer, Rotary president introduced the speaker.

VALENTINO CLINGS TO LIFE; HOSPITAL REPORTS NO CHANGE

Movie Actor Takes Nourishment But Fever Is Higher

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Rudolph Valentino the young Italian who studied farming but became the screen's greatest lover today was on the threshold on one side of which was life and health and on the other death.

Early this morning his condition was officially pronounced "unchanged" but his temperature of 103 was slightly higher than yesterday as was his pulse of 100 and a respiration of twenty-seven.

P. George Ullman, Valentino's personal manager, was at the bedside for an hour before 9 a. m. today and on leaving reported Valentino's fever had dropped slightly after an apparently restful night.

He said the actor was permitted for the first time to take nourishment, being served a small bowl of broth. Ullman said he was much encouraged.

"Rudolph asked me once 'How long is this damn thing going to last,' Ullman said.

Pola Negri, actress, telephoned the hospital twice during the night from Hollywood and among the messages arriving at daybreak was a second cablegram from Doug Fairbanks, and Mary Pickford and a telegram from Syd Grauman, Los Angeles theatrical magnate.

SUSPENDS CHIEF OF POLICE AND SLEUTH FOLLOWING CHARGE

Allege Officers Were Using Autos Stolen In Chicago

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 18.—Chief of Police J. Shirley West and Detective Richard Claudin were suspended today by Mayor Louis Mueller, as a result of charges made by Sergeant Frank McDonald, of the Chicago Automobile Detective Bureau, that they were driving automobiles which had been stolen in Chicago.

Announcement of the suspension followed a request from the mayor that McDonald, the two officers and Floyd Overby, of Chicago, held as the ring-leader of an alleged automobile theft ring, meet with him in his office.

An automobile was surrendered by Chief West last week, when he was shown that it had been stolen in Chicago. He is said to have purchased the machine from Overby last June.

Claudin, veteran detective, said he had not been shown that the automobile he purchased from Overby was stolen.

Jesse D. West, attorney, also named by McDonald as having a stolen machine in his possession, denied that it had been so identified.

McDonald said he would not submit to a cross-examination at the hearing.

The mayor then announced that, as he could not learn the truth about the charges, he temporarily would suspend the officers. William Kunst, veteran detective, was named to be temporary chief of police.

GREENE COUNTY HIT HARD; GRAIN CROPS AND ROADS DAMAGED

New Burlington Has Floods—Traction Service Held Up

Continuous and heavy rainfall during the past twenty-four hours or more took an extensive toll of crop damage and road and railway wash-outs and flood conditions prevail in lowlands at the edge of New Burlington.

Heavy rains flooded fields of Greene County and officials of the Greene County Farm Bureau estimate on the basis of reports received, that hundreds of acres of unthreshed oats and wheat and in some cases sweet corn standing in the fields, are totally ruined.

The rain area, is spread generally over the county but particularly at New Burlington where the water has risen to the greatest height recorded since 1913. Anderson's Fork and Caesar's Creek at the edge of the village have risen four or five feet at that place flooding several homes in the bottomlands and forcing residents to evacuate their dwellings in the flood area.

Many small streams are out of their banks and all roads but one leading into New Burlington have been rendered practically impassable by washouts. The county road repair department only recently finished repairs on highways in this district and the work must now be repeated.

It is estimated that hundreds of acres of crops of unthreshed oats and wheat standing in shocks in the fields are affected. Farm bureau officials characterize the heavy rainfall and damage as the greatest for this time of the year within their remembrance.

Crops were already damp and wet by intermittent rain of the past day or so and the quick growth of weeds also renders separation of shocks particularly difficult. The sweet corn crop in the lowlands will be lost but the main damage may be offset to some extent by a measure of benefit derived by growing corn.

In the bottomlands of Spring Valley a similar flood condition prevails. Creeks are running bank full and in some cases overflowing in many parts of the county.

C. D. Myers and Charles Watkins, of near New Burlington, were two of the greatest sufferers by the high waters. Myers is reported to have lost a barley crop, Watkins fifteen acres of oats. All so one or two of his horses which were washed down a stream, was reported drowned.

County road repair gangs were engaged in various parts of the county Tuesday and Wednesday repairing damage to the roads and holes torn in the pikes near culverts.

The foundation of a trestle spanning a heretofore dry ditch at the Factory Road near Alpha was washed away disrupting for time the schedule of the Dayton, Xenia, Railway Co. The damage was being repaired Wednesday morning although a transfer of passengers at this point was necessary for a time. The schedule was resumed without loss of much time.

No particular damage was reported by officials of The Ohio Bell Telephone Co., or the Pennsylvania Railroad Co.

Showers and thunderstorms were in prospect for Wednesday again with much the same gloomy outlook predicted for Thursday by the weather forecasters.

RESERVE AVIATORS DROWN AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 18.—Two naval reserve aviators drowned at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station near here today, when the plane they were flying crashed in the lake.

Ensign George Hammer, Austin, Texas, and Ensign E. S. Stone, Howard, S. D., had flown a plane to a height of 600 feet and then descended to a 300-foot level, when the plane went into a nose dive and crashed into the lake. The plane went down and the aviators were pinned beneath it.

One report was that the plane is the same one that fell at the training station two months ago. An investigation of the tragedy was ordered.

The men were both officers in the reserve corps and were taking their annual two weeks of instruction.

REPAIR OF NIAGARA FALLS MUST AWAIT CANADA ELECTION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Repair of Niagara Falls must wait on elections.

Plan for the repair of the famous honeymooners' mecca, the edge of which is disintegrating, threatening destruction of the scenic value of the falls, has been held up by the United States and Canadian governments until after the Canadian elections. It is felt that the government commissions can act with more authority then.

A "sore tooth" cavity is causing the damage. A V-shaped notch on the edge is causing convergence of the waters, rapid eating away of the edge, much mist to spoil the view, and a promise to destroy the wide falls completely by cutting out a gorge. The notch is in the middle of the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side. One plan is to build concrete islands in Niagara River above the falls to turn the flow over the other parts of the falls. The edge of the falls has been receding an average of seven feet a year for many years, but heretofore its steep edge has been evenly preserved, according to Commerce Department engineers working under Secretary Hoover on plans for saving the place. The falls on the American side are not wearing away so speedily. The engineers assert that the beauty of the American falls is not being lost, due to the even distribution of the water, which totals only 9,000 cubic feet a second, compared with the 150,000 cubic feet on the Canadian side. Besides the concrete islands, plans have been suggested for reinforcement of the fringe of the cliff with concrete, and also for a submerged concrete weir, or dam to be constructed above the falls. The concrete islands, it is pointed out, could be covered with trees and sod to prevent impairment of the natural beauty of the cataract.

There are a thousand and one causes of constipation, practically all of them being preventable or correctable. Many of the minor causes of constipation tend to produce the few main causes that will require consideration when it comes to treatment of the disorder. In many cases it is necessary to observe many of the little causes, any single one of which would have slight effect upon an otherwise properly cared-for body but which, when several of them are taken together, create the intestinal disturbance. It is claimed that in certain individuals there is apparently a constitutional basis for the trouble. In some cases the reduced activity of the bowels seems to be a family complaint passed down from generation to generation. In other words, the individual's peculiarity or tendency to sluggishness is thought to be hereditary. But this "hereditary tendency" is most likely nothing but a continuation from generation to generation of the same dietetic and hygienic errors. This is the explanation of many so-called "hereditary" diseases and susceptibilities. Constipation is more frequently present in brunettes than those of fair complexion, and complexion is hereditary; but it cannot be said that dark complexioned people directly inherit constipation. There are certain peculiarities of secretions in brunettes which cause them to respond more unfavorably to certain dietetic errors, and this accounts for the more frequent development of intestinal and certain other digestive disorders, including constipation. Practically all of these cases of constipation can be corrected or controlled by diet alone. One's environment doubtless has much to do with the state of bowel elimination. Surroundings have a very marked influence upon one's mental processes and upon one's equanimity, as well as upon his physical body. A change of environment, not necessarily from good to bad, may be a cause of sluggishness of bowel eliminations. This change may alter one's general physical activity but may involve only change in climate and soil, especially when the change is to a chalky soil, or probably in drinking water. Most landsmen become constipated when taking a sea voyage.

SCOTTISH MART YRS SUFFERED FOR SUNDAY GOLF

Contrary to a prevailing opinion, Sunday golf in the "good old days" was severely condemned and little does the man who enjoys his usual Sunday morning round these days realize that in former days martyrs suffered for the cause of golfdom on this day.

Delving into the old records the fact comes to light that in the year 1600 Robert Patterson and a number of fellow Scots were sentenced to make public repentance for having indulged in their favorite outdoor pastime at North Inch, Perth, during time of preaching.

Golf has come a long way from a modest and primitive beginning to its position today as perhaps the most widely played game in the world regardless of nationalities. Palatial club houses and beautiful eighteen hole courses carefully attended and built at great expense, was to be a revelation to the old Scotsman who used to knock a ball over the stony hills of his native land.

Golf, in its centuries of development to present day popularity, sometimes had a rather hard time of it. In 1487 the Scottish Parliament legislated against it because it interfered with the practice of archery. But the hardy Scots persisted in their crude sport, and gave us the modern highly developed game.

Although games similar to golf were played in other lands, the country of heaths and heather was responsible for the development of the real game. By the end of the eighteenth century, golf was played to a great extent in the British Isles.

Most of the clubs were of wood and the courses were rough and not well kept. The Royal Blackheath Golf Club, the oldest organization of its kind in the world, dates its origin from the days when James I played there, and the first minutes of the club were written in 1787. There are records of matches played at Muirfield as early as 1724.

One of the interesting customs of the early days of golf was that of taking sand from the hole on one "green" to make a tee for the next drive. This was possible because the tee for one hole was only a few feet from the green of the preceding one. Such a practice certainly must have enlarged the hole to a size sweet to the dabb. The holes were few in number, but unusually long so that there were more nines and tens on an old time score card than there were fours and fives. Irons were used only to get out of bunkers.

SPRING FLOWERS MUST BE PLANTED NOW SAYS TEACHER

Many of next year's flowers depend on plants that are set out this fall. Peonies that are to bloom next spring should be set out now. They must not be planted over four inches deep or they will not bloom. Fall planting is desirable because peonies make most of their root growth in the late fall and early spring. If they lose the benefit of the fall growth, Prof. Alfred C. Hottel, of the department of floriculture at the Ohio State University says, they will just live through the next season.

The iris, like the peony, must be transplanted during August and September because the next season's roots start at that time. This is the only time of the year that the oriental poppy is planted or transplanted with success. This is the dormant season for the poppy.

August is the time to plant or transplant the madonna lily. It grows best in a leaf mold where the ground is shaded and cool at all times. Dig out the soil and replace it with a mixture of loam, and leaf mold in planting. The ground can be kept shaded and cool by keeping it covered with a layer of decaying leaves or planting it among perennials such as larkspurs, peonies, and rhododendrons. Plant about four inches deep.

ARRESTED AGAIN ON PAROLE VIOLATION

Armed with a capias issued by Probate Judge S. C. Wright, Deputy Sheriff John Baughn arrested Raymond Kester Monday on a charge of violating his parole granted in Probate Court June 1 from a conviction for assault and battery on his wife.

Kester, according to Judge Wright, was fined $5 and costs and sentenced to thirty days in the County Jail. The jail sentence was suspended upon future good behavior.

It is alleged Kester has since violated his parole by continued

drinking failure to pay the costs of the old charge, and by a renewed assault upon his wife. He was being held in the County Jail Tuesday pending a hearing of the case before Judge Wright in Probate Court.

United States Senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs, who addressed the Rotary Club Tuesday night, has consented to attend the Republican executive committee organization meeting and make an address, it is announced.

The meeting will take the appearance of an informal G. O. P. rally which will serve to inaugurate plans for the fall election campaign.

Letters of notification of the official call for the organization meeting have been mailed out containing the signatures of Frank H. Dean, Xenia, Central Committee chairman, and H. C. Lewis, Cedarville, secretary.

AT ANY PRICE

The three-million-dollar primary in Pennsylvania and the one-million-dollar primary in Illinois—much more is likely to be uncovered—fill every serious minded citizen with alarm, because they prove clearly what we all suspected before, that our high offices, particularly seats in the United States Senate, have become the prizes which our rich men are determined to buy at any price.

This is the way all former republics have gone to decay and ultimately to destruction. Newberry was disgraced, Vane and Pepper and Smith and McKinley are disgraced by their attempts to buy seats in the Senate, but their fate will not deter others unless drastic action be taken to bring their disgrace home to such men by the application of the social penalties which are heavier far than any of the law.

PEACE TIME SACRIFICES

Wandering about the streets of Toledo, two young men, their minds shriveled and wholly forgetful of the past, were picked up by the police and sent to the receiving hospital. There under the watchful care of physicians and nurses, they attempted to recall their past, and to catch again those delicate threads of memory that link today with yesterday.

These two youths are a part of that little group which stood guard over the arsenal at Lake Denmark, N. J., when lightning started the series of explosions that wrecked the great plant and caused a hundred million dollars in loss.

They were listed as missing, for in the crash and the roar of the catastrophe they dropped from sight, only to turn up as wanderers in a far-away city—wanderers in both body and mind.

Thus is the nation brought face to face with the fact that one does not need a war to bring home the tragedies of life, for there are horrors of peace which are as terrible as those of war. They may even be considered more so, because of their unexpectedness.

The explosion at Lake Denmark snuffed out a score or more of lives. To them death came as a merciful ending of suffering.

To the lads who wander, bereft of mind and memory because of the shock, no such mercy was accorded. The skill of medical science may yet restore them, as it has done in countless other cases. But the horror of it all will remain with them always.

For such is the case of the man who suffered and served in time of war. And such also is the case of his brother in the service, who with equal devotion to the cause and duty suffered and gave the best which he had in those great emergencies that come in peace time.

WHAT BOOTS OLD AGE?

Old age is no bar to some men. Here is Ezra Meeker, who crossed the plains and crossed the mountains in his youth to claim Oregon for the United States, now returning over the same route—not with ox teams but in modern ways, to raise money for the building of a monument to the early pathfinders.

Then here is George Thomason who has moved from Washington to Pomona, California, to open a jewelry store. He declares himself a "young man" although he admits having seen 94 summers.

The way to remain young, according to both of these old gentlemen is to maintain your youth and to insist there is no such thing as old age. We have read somewhere that Shakespeare at 50 felt so old he wrote his will, bequeathing his second best bed to his wife and cursing anyone who might move his bones; then died at 52. It surely is better to start a new business at 94 than writing curses in a will at 50.

The Theatre

Gus Sun, Springfield theatrical man and nationally known vaudeville and tabloid showman, is the subject of a special number of "Variety," the nationally read theatrical paper which is just off the press.

The issue is of sixty-four pages, and carries a history of Gus Sun, his rise in the theatrical world and accounts of his interests. There are articles on the Gus Sun Booking Exchange, on the Sun-Linder amalgamation for all eastern territory, on miniature musical comedies as exemplified in the Gus Sun bookings and a host of articles of a reminiscent nature by theatrical stars and managers who have known Gus Sun for the past twenty years.

The occasion of the special number is the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Gus Sun Booking Exchange which today has branch offices in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Toronto, Canada; Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Kansas City, Mo., Atlanta, Ga., and San Francisco Cal. Starting with three houses in 1906, today the exchange has a circuit of 275 houses, the largest in the world. The main offices are located in Springfield and the Gus Sun interests have made the city known the world over as a theatrical center. There is approximately 25 per cent of the issue given up to greetings and congratulations from leaders of the stage and stage-managers, given to Gus Sun on his twentieth anniversary.

*****

Variety devotes most of the editorial page to Gus Sun and his business methods, giving him playful "digs" on the Sun characteristics, but rating him as one of the foremost men in the theatrical world.

DELICIOUS CARAMEL CAKE

Contrary to opinion, it is not hard to make a good caramel cake. I have originated the following recipe, which is as inexpensive as it is delicious, calling for only one egg and for no milk at all.

One-Egg Caramel Cake: Begin by caramelizing one tablespoon of granulated sugar (for the sake of inexperienced cooks, I am going to give minute details). To caramelize sugar simply put it into a small frying pan (with nothing else in the pan) and let it melt and turn to a deep brown. Now add one-half cup of warm water; this will make the burnt sugar fizz up and lump, but if you continue to boil it for several minutes you will find that the lumps melt. Strain and cool the sirup.

Next, begin mixing your cake as follows: Cream one-fourth cup of butter in a medium-size mixing bowl. Add to it three-fourths of a cup of granulated sugar. Stir in the beaten yolk of one egg. Then add the cooled caramelized sirup, and blend well. Sift one and one-half cups of ordinary bread flour with one and one-half teaspoons of baking powder and stir this into the mixing bowl. Flavor with one-half teaspoon of vanilla extract and fold in the stiffly-whipped white of one egg. Beat for three minutes steadily, then scrape the batter into a loaf-cake pan measuring about four by eight inches on the bottom with flaring sides. Line the pan with wax paper to avoid the cake sticking to it; when this is done, you need not grease the pan, as the cake batter is poured right onto the wax paper.

Slip the pan into a hot (but not very hot) oven. If you use a Fahrenheit oven thermometer have it register between 400 and 450 degrees throughout the entire thirty-five to forty minutes of the baking. When done, the cake should be two inches high. Peel off the wax paper on the bottom, while the cake is hot. Then frost as follows:

Caramel Frosting: Put one teaspoon of granulated sugar into a frying pan, let melt and burn, then add one-fourth cup of warm

WHAT HAPPENS TO FATHERS

If you should see my coat of gray
And my initial shirt today,
My collar and my jaunty cap,
Do not decide that I'm the chap,
'Tis true that I may claim the shoes,
The hosiery I'll not refuse,
The handkerchief is mine, I'll swear,
But someone else is walking there.

Time was the raiment which I own
Was mine to wear and mine alone,
But now across the table I
Behold my scarfpin in my tie,
My fancy sweater, large as life,
Upon the left hand of my wife,
"Hello," I say, "there's something queer,
I can't be sitting there and here."

"Yet that's my necktie and my shirt
And that's my collar I'll assert,
And those, I'm certain I can say
Are socks I got last Christmas Day."

And then she chuckles: "Don't you see
You leave your stuff upon the shelf,
He just walks in and helps himself."

And so I write these lines to say
If you should see my cap today,
My shirt, my shoes, my coat, my tie,
Do not decide that it is I.
My boy to such a size has grown
He takes my raiment for his own.
Dress does not mark the man,
'Tis said,
It oft proclaims the son instead.

SIDELIGHTS
ON
Greene County History
XENIA TOWNSHIP BORDERS

The present irregular shape of Xenia Twp. has not resulted from the caprice of the surveyors who have platted it, or its residents, but seems to have arisen from the formation of the townships which have been stricken in part from its territory. The fact that certain petitioners wished to become residents of the new townships formed caused them to have the surveyor include their farms within the newly erected political units of the county.

Also the fact that their farms lay in that part of the county where the military surveys obtained, made the resulting line of the new townships irregular.

It follows then that the western line of Xenia Township is fairly regular, but the one on the east makes the township look like a patch in a crazy quilt.

Beginning at the northwest corner of the township, the line runs east one-half mile, thence north one-half mile, thence east one and one-half miles, then south one mile and then east to the river where it turns abruptly southward of west crossing the river a short distance of one-half mile.

The line then runs southeast three miles; south a mile, east in an irregular course; then in a line bearing somewhat west of south to a point not quite a mile south of the B. and O. Railroad; southwest one mile, southeast one-fourth of a mile, southwest one-fourth of a mile, southeast a half mile, southwest a half mile and southeast one mile to Caesars Creek.

Here the line follows the meanderings of the creek for three miles to the Peterson farm; then north three-fourths of a mile; thence a little north of west three miles; one-fourth mile northwest to the Columbus Pike; which it follows a quarter of a mile northeast; northwest one mile; a little west of north a mile and a half; north three miles to the Little Miami River which it follows a mile north east; thence north one mile, west a half mile, north one mile, west a half mile, and north a mile and one-half to the place of beginning. This gives some conception of the broken boundary line of Xenia Twp.

RAIN TODAY—SUN TOMORROW

It has been said before, but it will bear repeating: Nature is our wisest teacher.

I was out on a vast stretch of Western country the other day. In the distance a dark, black storm was gathering. In a few minutes it was fast furious in its spending. Towns were flooded, streams overflowed their banks, and bridges were washed away as though they had been made of pasteboard.

But the next day the sun came up in its old, beautiful way and the country about smiled and then went on its way as usual.

Storms, cyclones, rains, and earthquakes are only occasional. The sunny days, the days in which a man is able to work and achieve, are the ones out of which life and happiness are molded.

People who are always in a worry, a frenzy of disturbance, are not the ones who live longest and carry on the great burdens of the world.

The other day in a great city, a prominent man dropped dead on the street. During his life he was always trying to work up people to the appreciation of horrid conditions in everyday life. He could think of nothing else. He had, in fact, steeped himself in his own mediocrity so that when that heat wave came along, his excitable nature could not withstand it.

But Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Depey live on! Both are great philosophers who do not get excited, but who have always seen the pleasant, happy side of life and sought to distribute it.

Rain today—but sun tomorrow! Nothing unpleasant lasts forever. The law of nature is even. It is an intermission from which we may all learn if we study the formula.

If you wear yourself all out about something that you think is going to happen, if it does happen, you won't have the strength to face it at all. And in most cases it doesn't happen the way you think it is going to anyway.

My friend told me the other day to "only worry about things that will be worth worrying about a year hence."

THE LOST TRUNK CHECK IS FOUND IN MITZI'S BAG

By Jay V. Jay

"You know, I think I am going to like this city very much," announces Mitzi as she arrives in Oklahoma City on her tour of the country, and sees a very smart costume ahead of her. She has had very little time to see anything besides the baggage room for Dad before conducting a search for the trunk checks which are conspicuous by their absence. Mitzi remains calm in the face of calamity, and appears smart under any circumstance. They all seem unconcerned with the luggage question since they are wearing their stunning unlined summer coats. Reading from left to right, Polly wears a coat of crepe roma banded in satin, it's of two shades of tan. Mitzi wears a coat of georgette with a tie scarf collar. A dress of a contrasting shade is worn beneath it, giving a two color effect. Aunt Sophia's coat with the dolman sleeves is made of crepe satin faced with a slightly different shade at collar and cuffs.

"Well, look and see if you haven't them somewhere," exhorts Dad to his companions. He's talking about the trunk checks, again. They are mislaid, according to Dad. They're lost, according to Mitzi. Searching in the newest of handbags is a pleasant task so they both start poking through the necessary vanities, lip sticks, rouge boxes and miscellaneous money. Polly's handbag is of pigskin with patent leather trimming. Mitzi's is the reverse—patent leather with pigskin trimming. Mitzi remarks that two color handbags are exceedingly smart. Wasn't it fortunate that they could get them to match their coats? Aunt Sophia asks: "What's this?" and points to the miscreant checks in Mitzi's bag. "That," replies Mitzi, "is a new compartment for bills that I never knew was there." Incidentally Dad secures the checks. Mitzi thinks it was worthwhile losing them just to find this division of her bag.

ANNING WITH ARRELL

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Jack Dempsey's biggest concern as he prepares himself for his fight with Gene Tunney or the next defense of his title against any opponent will be to find out how much has been taken out of his weapons by three years of idleness.

In training he can find out how good his wind is and correct any deficiency by proper exercise and diet. He can find out how strong his legs are and do more roadwork if he thinks he hasn't the proper strength. He can improve his speed and his boxing by sparring with fast and shifty partners.

But there is no way for him to recover any lost mental spark, the thing called co-ordination which makes the hand and foot respond to the eye and the brain automatically.

All the work he could do in the gymnasium or the training camp would not improve an eye that was one-thousandth of the second slow because the best of sparring give him the real test or they do not.

Not many critics give Tunney partners are not good enough to would not be sparring partners. a big chance if he meets Dempsey. They admit that Tunney is younger but they do not class him as a killing puncher. They admit that the long absence from the ring may have impaired Dempsey's speed, eye and boxing but they refer to the Carpenter and Firpo fights as proof that Dempsey can take it even no matter how many times Tunney hits him.

But, if memory serves correctly, Dempsey was hit by Carpenter and Firpo when he was stepping back or rolling with the punch. He didn't have to take the double force that a boxer gets when he steps into a punch or "runs into one" as the boxers put it.

Dempsey looked to be in almost perfect condition when he came to New York and seemed to be within a few pounds of fighting weight. He had speed in the ring and a punch on the base.

But, some very good trainers pointed out that you can't tell about the inside. They still

INDIANS MANAGER CHALLENGES XENIA RESERVES TO GAME

Manager Minor on behalf of the Xenia Indians, is issuing a challenge to the Xenia Reserves for a series of three or more games to decide the independent baseball championship of the city.

The Indians' pilot declares his team is confident it is stronger than the Reserves, and is anxious for the title clash.

The Indians, it also claimed, batted against the pitching of Bob Herman earlier in the season and obtained three runs and eleven hits off his delivery. This is an improvement over the showing of the Reserves last week as Manager Cyphers' team was unable to garner more than one hit and an unearned run, although winning the contest.

Manager Minor says his team is constantly being reinforced by the addition of new players and fully believes his boys are capable of holding their own with the Reserves.

point out that doctors who looked over Jim Jeffries before he fought and lost to Jack Johnson said that he was fat inside and couldn't last long under punches to the body.

Tunney no doubt has figured for some time that his chance for victory rested on an attack to the body, based perhaps on the belief that Dempsey would be hurt more inside by his long absence from the ring.

Before Dempsey went to his training camp, some friends in New York gave him the laugh when he said he was not taking Tunney lightly.

"Explain, if you can," one of them said, "how you can lose unless you're in such bad shape that you collapse from your own exertion. Tunney can't hurt you."

"Listen," Dempsey interrupted, "any man can be hurt if he's hit in the right spot, and I've got just as many right spots as any other champion."

Kiwanis won the first and second games of the series but the Rotarians, with a revised lineup and added strength, are certain they will be able to emerge victorious in the consolation game Thursday.

Regardless of the result Thursday a joint Rotary-Kiwanis team is to be formed from the pick of players of both clubs and a game may be arranged with the newly organized Junior Business Men's Club soft ball team. It is announced.

This contest may be played next week.

"Not Possible To Classify"

By Mack Sauer

Bob Kingsbury writes me from Michigan that yesterday he visited the place on a Michigan lake where the sun sets each night. He says that it was from this particular spot that we got our first sunfish.

Wayne Smith of New Burlington says it has been raining so often down and flooding the chicken coops so frequently that now every time it thunders the chickens fly to the tops of the trees.

TERIBLE

A queer, queer gink
Is Hiram Ration;
He gives his workers
No vacation.

These tales about the Scotch people being so tight don't get even a smile from me any more, since I have to get down on my knees and beg for a penny lead pencil from our bookkeeper.

TUT! TUT!

"What will I serve
With onions?" asked Jean;
Her husband said,
"Serve Listerine."

About the only time I ever think about this not being a land of free speech is when I pay my telephone bill. So I said to Mr. Cleaver, "so long as we have the telephone, death won't be the only thing that will take a heavy toll."

W must be on guard against any false optimism, but it looks as if we were going through the summer without any straw votes being taken as to whether our nation is wet or dry. Our prohibition logic is better than our lager.

RIGHT!

A guy who boasts
Of his Americanism,
Is full of prunes
And egotism.

We read in the papers that out of every four couples that get married today one will get a divorce, so we don't feel quite so sad when we hear that some young gentleman friend has taken unto himself a wife, hoping that he will be the lucky one out of four.

My wife being out of the city has sold me on the proposition that restaurant cooks make the poorest coffee in the world but has not gained from me the admission that my wife can make good coffee. She'll kill me, if she reads this.

CAREFUL

At fifty per hour
He gave her a hug,
The very next day
Two graves were dug.

MORRIS SHARP,
Sheriff of Greene County, Ohio.
(Aug. 18)

pathologist at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.
Copper carbonate dust applied at the rate of three ounces or three tablespoonsful per bushel has now become a standard treatment and is rapidly replacing the older dipping soaking, and sprinkling methods.

Finely ground copper sulfate or blue vitriol may be substituted for copper carbonate at a somewhat lower cost. Copper stearate also is proved efficient. Copper stearate is considerably higher in price per pound than copper carbonate, but it requires only one-half ounce per bushel of wheat.

Pure copper carbonate containing 50 percent metallic copper showed no marked advantage in the test over a grade known as "copper carb" containing about 18 percent copper.

No injury to germination was observed from the use of any of these dusts. Treatment may be made at anytime in advance of sowing. To insure a thorough covering of the grain it is best to use some form of closed container in applying the dust.

The results of the tests and the different methods of treatment are given in a bulletin on Control of Smuts of Wheat and Oats, which will be sent upon request addressed to Experiment Station, Wooster, O.

While walking she believes she sees the slumbering form of Briscoe—a few minutes later the earth opens and she is plunged in a mysterious underground passage.

"It was a disconcerting and impertinent counter-thrust, though Lydia. But why antagonize the creature?"

"I only meant, had you known him a long time?" she forced herself to say, pleasantly.

"Oh, so-so."

Lydia went on:

"I saw you in the Cafe de Paris didn't I, with Rupert Briscoe, I know him for some time."

MEMBERS OF FAMILY ESCAPE INJURY AS HOUSE IS WRECKED

Safety Director Is Believed Target Of Bootleggers

NILES, O., Aug. 18.—The home of Safety Director O. O. Hewitt was almost totally wrecked when dynamited early today.

Miss Ruth Hewitt, daughter of the director, was dazed by the blast but other members of the family escaped. The windows of the home were shattered by the explosion and houses in the neighborhood were slightly damaged.

Hewitt has been active against bootleggers for the last few weeks. He has personally led police in several extensive raids.

Mrs. Hewitt suffered a slight nervous shock as a result of the explosion.

Investigation by police showed the bomb had been placed against the front door. That section of the house was damaged most.

The bombing was the fourth here in a year. The other blasts at the home of the Mayor, Police Chief L. J. Rount and another on the east side.

Police are searching the wreckage trying to find a piece of the bomb.

A woman living near the Hewitt home, told police she heard an automobile stop before daylight and a moment later drive away. This automobile was believed to have been used by the dynamiters.

Nearly all of the furniture in the Hewitt home was wrecked. Dishes were broken and pictures knocked from the walls.

DISTRICT MINE WORKERS HEAD REFUSES TO ATTEND WAGE MEET

Declares Jacksonville Wage Agreement Effective In March And Provides For Conference In February.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 18.—Lee Hall, district president of the Ohio Mine Workers, today refused to attend a new wage meeting. Hall in a letter today to S. H. Robbins, president of the operators' association pointed out that the Jacksonville wage agreement is effective until next March and provides for a joint conference of miners and owners of the central competitive field, in February.

The coal operators sought the joint district conference on the argument that under a new wage agreement they would be able to open up the many idle mines. In his reply to the operators' letter of August 10, Hall said: "The mine workers of Ohio are under contract to the coal operators of Ohio who compose the membership of your association and other operators of the state."

"The present contract to which you are a party, does not expire until March 31, 1927. The contract above referred to bears the signature of Mr. S. H. Robbins and Mr. T. R. Biddle—two members of the board of directors of your new association."

"These gentlemen were selected as the members of the subcommittee to represent the Ohio operators at the joint scale conference of the central competitive field, which was held in Jacksonville, Fla., in February of 1924."

"This contract was made for a three year period."

"The Jacksonville agreement, above referred to, makes provision for calling of another joint conference."

The letter then quotes the section providing for the next conference in Miami, the second Monday in February and concludes: "Therefore under the provisions of the contract above referred to, I cannot comply with your request."

PRESIDENT SILENT IN MATTER OF SMALL TALK SAYS SENATOR

Coolidge Talkative On Things of State, Rotarians Told—Tribute Paid To Newspaper Correspondents

An interesting insight into the character of President Coolidge was given in the "close-up" afforded Xenia Rotarians and guests by U. S. Senator S. D. Fess, Yellow Springs, at the Elks' Club, Tuesday night.

The President is usually regarded as silent—he is silent as far as small talk is concerned," Senator Fess declared. "He doesn't like it. He likes you to indulge in it for his amusement but he will not engage in petty conversation."

"He will answer 'yes' and 'no' and you can go ahead. While most people think they have to agree with others, the President doesn't. You are entirely wrong if you think President Coolidge never talks. As a matter of fact, he is very talkative, but only on matters of interest."

"When he was thrust into the Presidency by the death of President Harding, he had said nothing, the newspapers could quote with interest attached. Since then the public has been given many ways of understanding his attitude."

Senator Fess, in the past, has been invited to "drop in" at the White House and go over matters with the President. They laughed together and then went to the White House library. Here President Coolidge did most of the talking, for three hours, Senator Fess only interposing an occasional question. The President's answers showed a hesitancy, the speaker said. There was no forcing of attention on the President's part, and he was completely absorbed in each particular question of his guest. "His answers are clear-cut and show he thinks things out," he said.

"The President's attitude meant to Senator Fess that the Chief Executive did not care what the public thinks, that if the solution at stake was right, as he saw it, he'd do it that way."

"The President is silent as far as small talk is concerned, but talkative and concise on things of state," the speaker said. Senator Fess was a guest at the White House two weeks last Winter, after the death of Mrs. Fess. He found Mrs. Coolidge delightfully congenial and cordial. Her attitude and personality counterbalanced that of the President, with whom one was sure to feel at ease, he found. Senator Fess, during his stay, occupied the famous Blue Room, where Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation, and slept in the four poster, brought there by Andrew Jackson.

The Senator described the President's daily routine, while at the White House. It was through Senator Fess's suggestion that the President was permitted to abandon the handshaking during the reception of several hundred school students each year. There are other troublesome and wearing details which the President is forced to attend, that should be taken away with, in the mind of the Senator, such as signing commissions, etc.

"They are wearing the very life out of each President," he said, "although President Coolidge doesn't show the strain like his predecessors, particularly Harding. President Harding gave too much of himself, while President Coolidge is wise enough to reserve himself. While President Harding would stop to chat with you, President Coolidge, shakes hands, and moves the crowd along."

The Senator described White Pine Camp, the Summer White House and his recent visit there. He said that the President's fondness for the White Pine Camp, where he and his family spent the summer, was a sign of his love of nature and his desire to escape the pressures of the White House.

"The men that are assigned there are the best. There are no other men in their profession equal to them. Their work is the highest goal of the reporter's profession. They are honorable and know what to say and write."

He said his official files were open to the Washington correspondents at all times, because he depended on their trustworthiness. "They never ask the President improper questions—they are too honorable. There is no 'smart-alecky' business when they meet the President at White Pine Camp two or three times a week or at any other time."

He told of the day's program at the President's retreat. "I don't know as to the truth of the President's big catches," he said. "But I do know he and I fished during my visit, and the fish showed no disposition to bite."

The President is widely read and is able to discuss all questions and gives his judgment freely, the Senator said. He concluded his address by recounting several amusing tales told on the President, giving examples of his pure fund of humor.

Senator Fess received the warm attention of Rotarians and their guests. His talk was the chief feature of the evening, following a chicken banquet served by Jacob Kany. C. S. Frazier, Rotary president introduced the speaker.

VALENTINO CLINGS TO LIFE; HOSPITAL REPORTS NO CHANGE

Movie Actor Takes Nourishment But Fever Is Higher

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Rudolph Valentino the young Italian who studied fencing but became the screen's greatest lover today was on the threshold on one side of which was life and health and on the other death.

Early this morning his condition was officially pronounced "unchanged" but his temperature of 103 was slightly higher than yesterday as was his pulse of 100 and a respiration of twenty-seven.

P. George Ullman, Valentino's personal manager, was at the bedside for an hour before 9 a. m. on and on leaving reported Valentino's fever had dropped slightly after an apparently restful night.

He said the actor was permitted for the first time to take nourishment, being served a small bowl of broth. Ullman said he was much encouraged.

"Rudolph asked me once 'How long is this damn thing going to last,' Ullman said.

Pola Negri, actress, telephoned the hospital twice during the night from Hollywood and among the messages arriving at daybreak was a second cablegram from Doug Fairbanks and Mary Pickford and a telegram from Syd Grauman, Los Angeles theatrical magnate.

Announcement of the suspension followed a request from the mayor that McDonald, the two officers and Floyd Overby, of Chicago, held as the ringleader of an alleged automobile theft ring, meet with him in his office.

An automobile was surrendered by Chief West last week, when he was shown that it had been stolen in Chicago. He is said to have purchased the machine from Overby last June.

Claudin, veteran detective, said he had not been shown that the automobile he purchased from Overby was stolen.

Jesse D. West, attorney, also named by McDonald as having a stolen machine in his possession, denied that it had been so identified.

McDonald said he would not submit to a cross-examination at the hearing.

The mayor then announced that, as he could not learn the truth about the charges, he temporarily would suspend the officers. William Kunst, veteran detective, was named to be temporary chief of police.

GREENE COUNTY HIT HARD; GRAIN CROPS AND ROADS DAMAGED

New Burlington Has Floods—Traction Service Held Up

Continuous and heavy rainfall during the past twenty-four hours or more took an extensive toll of crop damage and road and railway wash-outs and flood conditions prevail in lowlands at the edge of New Burlington.

Heavy rains flooded fields of Greene County and officials of the Greene County Farm Bureau estimate on the basis of reports received, that hundreds of acres of unthreshed oats and wheat and in some cases sweet corn standing in the fields, are totally ruined.

The rain area, is spread generally over the county but particularly at New Burlington where the water has risen to the greatest height recorded since 1913. Anderson's Fork and Casars Creek at the edge of the village have risen four or five feet at that place flooding several homes in the bottomlands and forcing residents to evacuate their dwellings in the flood area.

Many small streams are out of their banks and all roads, but one leading into New Burlington have been rendered practically impassable by washouts. The county road repair department only recently finished repairs on highways in this district and the work must now be repeated.

It is estimated that hundreds of acres of crops of unthreshed oats and wheat standing in shocks in the fields are affected. Farm bureau officials characterize the heavy rainfall and damage as the greatest for this time of the year within their remembrance.

Crops were already damp and wet by intermittent rain of the past day or so and the quick growth of weeds also renders separation of shocks particularly difficult. The sweet corn crop in the lowlands will be lost but the main damage may be offset to some extent by a measure of benefit derived by growing corn.

In the bottomlands of Spring Valley a similar flood condition prevails. Creeks are running bank full and in some cases overflowing in many parts of the county.

C. D. Myers and Charles Watkins, of near New Burlington, were two of the greatest sufferers by the high waterway. Myers is reported to have lost a barley crop, Watkins fifteen acres of oats. Also one or two of his horses which were washed down a stream, was reported drowned.

County road repair gangs were engaged in various parts of the county Tuesday and Wednesday repairing damage to the roads and holes torn in the pikes near culverts.

The foundation of a trestle spanning a heretofore dry ditch at the Factory Road near Alpha was washed away Sunday for a time the schedule of the Dayton Xenia Railway Co. The damage was being repaired Wednesday morning although a transfer of passengers at this point was necessary for a time. The schedule was resumed without loss of much time.

No particular damage was reported by officials of The Ohio Bell Telephone Co., or the Pennsylvania Railroad Co.

Showers and thunderstorms were in prospect for Wednesday again with much the same gloomy outlook predicted for Thursday by the weather forecasters.

REPAIR OF NIAGARA FALLS MUST AWAIT CANADA ELECTION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Repair of Niagara Falls must wait on elections.

Plan for the repair of the famous honeymooners' mecca, the edge of which is disintegrating, threatening destruction of the scenic value of the falls, has been held up by the United States and Canadian governments until after the Canadian elections. It is felt that the government commissions can act with more authority then.

A "sore tooth" cavity is causing the damage. A V-shaped notch on the edge is causing convergence of the waters, rapid eating away of the edge, much mist to spoil the view, and a promise to destroy the wide falls completely by cutting out a gorge. The notch is in the middle of the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side.

One plan is to build concrete islands in Niagara River above the falls to turn the flow over the other parts of the falls.

The edge of the falls has been receding an average of seven feet a year for many years, but heretofore its steep edge has been evenly preserved, according to Commerce Department engineers working under Secretary Hoover on plans for saving the place.

The falls on the American side are not wearing away so speedily. The engineers assert that the beauty of the American falls is not being lost, due to the even distribution of the water, which totals only 9,000 cubic feet a second, compared with the 150,000 cubic feet on the Canadian side.

Besides the concrete islands, plans have been suggested for reinforcement of the edge of the cliff with concrete, and also for a submerged concrete weir, or dam to be constructed above the falls. The concrete islands, it is pointed out, could be covered with trees and soil to prevent impairment of the natural beauty of the cataract.

SCOTTISH MART YRS SUFFERED FOR SUNDAY GOLF

Contrary to a prevailing opinion Sunday golf in the "goode olde dayes" was severely condemned and little does the man who enjoys his usual Sunday morning round these days realize that in former days martyrs suffered for the cause of goldom on this day.

Delving into the old records the fact comes to light that in the year 1600 Robert Patterson and a number of fellow Scots were sentenced to make public repentance for having indulged in their favorite outdoor pastime at North Inch, Perth, during time of preaching.

Golf has come a long way from a modest and primitive beginning to its position today as perhaps the most widely played game in the world regardless of nationalities. Palatial club houses and beautiful eighteen hole courses carefully attended and built at great expense, would be a revelation to the old Scotsman who used to knock a ball over the stony hills of his native land.

Golf, in its centuries of development to present day popularity, sometimes had a rather hard time of it. In 1487 the Scottish Parliament legislated against it because it interfered with the practice of archery. But the hardy Scots persisted in their crude sport, and gave us the modern highly developed game.

Although games similar to golf were played in other lands, the country of heath and heather was responsible for the development of the real game. By the end of the eighteenth century, golf was played to a great extent in the British Isles.

Most of the clubs were of wood and the courses were rough and not well kept. The Royal Blackheath Golf Club, the oldest organization of its kind in the world, dates its origin from the days when James I played there, and the first minutes of the club were written in 1787. There are records of matches played at Muirfield as early as 1724.

One of the interesting customs of the early days of golf was that of taking sand from the hole on one "green" to make a tee for the next drive. This was possible because the tee for one hole was only a few feet from the green of the preceding one. Such a practice certainly must have enlarged the hole to a size sweet to the dubb. The holes were few in number, but unusually long so that there were more miles and tens on an old time score card than there were fours and fives. Irons were used only to get out of bunnkers.

SPRING FLOWERS MUST BE PLANTED NOW SAYS TEACHER

Many of next year's flowers depend on plants that are set out this fall. Peoples that are to bloom next spring should be set out now. They must not be planted over four inches deep or they will not bloom. Fall planting is desirable because peonies make most of their root growth in the late fall and early spring. If they lose the benefit of the fall growth, Prof. Alfred C. Hottes, of the department of floriculture at the Ohio State University says, they will just live through the next season.

The iris, like the peony, must be transplanted during August and September because the next season's roots start at that time. This is the only time of the year that the oriental poppy is planted or transplanted with success. This is the dormant season for the poppy.

August is the time to plant or transplant the madonna lily. It grows best in a leaf mold where the ground is shaded and cool at all times. Dig out the soil and replace it with a mixture of loam, and leaf mold in planting. The ground can be kept shaded and cool by keeping it covered with a layer of decaying leaves or planting it among perennials such as larkspurs, peonies, and rhododendrons. Plant about four inches deep.

Kester, according to Judge Wright, was fined $5 and costs and sentenced to thirty days in the County Jail. The jail sentence was suspended upon future good behavior.

It is alleged Kester has since violated his parole by continued

drinking failure to pay the costs of the old charge, and by a renewed assault upon his wife. He was being held in the County Jail Tuesday pending a hearing of the case before Judge Wright in Probate Court.

CLINK OF MONEY AND RATTLE OF CHIPS HEARD ABOVE SEA WAVES AT DEAUVILLE

DEAUVILLE, Aug. 18.—The clink of money and the rattle of chips almost could be heard above the swish of the waves as the smart world of Paris fashion, including American millionaires and beauties of all descriptions, met here to exchange $10,000,000 or so for a fortnight's luxurious pleasure.

This is the grand week at Deauville, and the description is no chamber of commerce booklet phrase, either.

It was estimated that $10,000,000 would change hands every twenty-four hours around the gambling tables of the Casino, and of that sum the house would take five per cent, for itself, win or lose. The hotels and restaurants expect to take $10,000,000 from the visitors.

Although the hotels have increased their accommodations almost double, hundreds of week-end guests probably will be forced to walk the streets at night or live in tents.

In only one respect has Deauville lost a bit of color. The women, or most of them, have abandoned the 1925 custom of parading the beach in elaborate costumes and actually are venturing into the sea, wearing abbreviated one-piece bathing suits. Bars have been established on the sands and around them semicircular women's nudes at the cocktail hour with their sisters who have chosen to wear a revealing Paris frock, instead of a swimming suit.

American millionaires, British missionaries, the potentates of the east, were among Deauville's guests today. Others of more slender purses were there too, but for the brief fortnight, Americans and Argentinians predominate at the races and around the gambling tables.

AT ANY PRICE

The three-million-dollar primary in Pennsylvania and the one-million-dollar primary in Illinois—much more is likely to be uncovered—fill every serious minded citizen with alarm, because they prove clearly what we all suspected before, that our high offices, particularly seats in the United States Senate, have become the prizes which our rich men are determined to buy at any price.

This is the way all former republics have gone to decay and ultimately to destruction. Newberry was disgraced, Vare and Pepper and Smith and McKinley are disgraced by their attempts to buy seats in the Senate, but their fate will not deter others unless drastic action be taken to bring their disgrace home to such men by the application of the social penalties which are heavier far than any of the law.

PEACE TIME SACRIFICES

Wandering about the streets of Toledo, two young men, their minds shrouded and wholly forgetful of the past, were picked up by the police and sent to the receiving hospital. There under the watchful care of physicians and nurses, they attempted to recall their past, and to catch again those delicate threads of memory that link today with yesterday.

These two youths are a part of that little group which stood guard over the arsenal at Lake Denmark, N. J., when lightning started the series of explosions that wrecked the great plant and caused a hundred million dollars in loss.

They were listed as missing, for in the crash and the roar of the catastrophe they dropped from sight, only to turn up as wanderers in a far-away city—wanderers in both body and mind.

Thus is the nation brought face to face with the fact that one does not need a war to bring home the tragedies of life, for there are horrors of peace which are as terrible as those of war. They may even be considered more so, because of their unexpectedness.

The explosion at Lake Denmark snuffed out a score or more of lives. To them death came as a merciful ending of suffering.

To the lads who wander, bereft of mind and memory because of the shock, no such mercy was accorded. The skill of medical science may yet restore them, as it has done in countless other cases. But the horror of it all will remain with them always.

For such is the case of the man who suffered and served in time of war. And such also is the case of his brother in the service, who with equal devotion to the cause and duty suffered and gave the best which he had in those great emergencies that come in peace time.

WHAT BOOTS OLD AGE?

Old age is no bar to some men. Here is Ezra Meeker, who crossed the plains and crossed the mountains in his youth to claim Oregon for the United States, now returning over the same route—not with ox teams but in modern ways to raise money for the building of a monument to the early pathfinders.

Then here is George Thomason who has moved from Washington to Pomona, California, to open a jewelry store. He declares himself a "young man" although he admits having seen 94 summers.

The way to remain young, according to both of these old gentlemen is to maintain your youth and to insist there is no such thing as old age. We have read somewhere that Shakespeare at 50 felt so old he wrote his will, bequeathing his second best bed to his wife and cursing anyone who might move his bones; then died at 52. It surely is better to start a new business at 94 than writing curses in a will at 50.

The Theatre

Gus Sun, Springfield theatrical man and nationally known vaudeville and tabloid showman, is the subject of a special number of "Variety," the nationally read theatrical paper which is just off the press.

The issue is of sixty-four pages, and carries a history of Gus Sun, his rise in the theatrical world and accounts of his interests. There are articles on the Gus Sun Booking Exchange, on the Sun-Linder amalgamation for all eastern territory, on miniature musical comedies as exemplified in the Gus Sun bookings and a host of articles of a reminiscent nature by theatrical stars and managers who have known Gus Sun for the past twenty years.

The occasion of the special number is the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Gus Sun Booking Exchange which today has branch offices in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Toronto, Canada, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Kansas City, Mo., Atlanta, Ga., and San Francisco, Cal. Starting with three houses in 1906, today the exchange has a circuit of 275 houses, the largest in the world. The main offices are located in Springfield and the Gus Sun interests have made the city known the world over as a theatrical center. There is approximately 25 per cent of the issue given up to greetings and congratulations from leaders of the stage and stage managers, given to Gus Sun on his twentieth anniversary.

Variety devotes most of the editorial page to Gus Sun and his business methods, giving him playful "digs" on the Sun character, but rating him as one of the foremost men in the theatrical world.

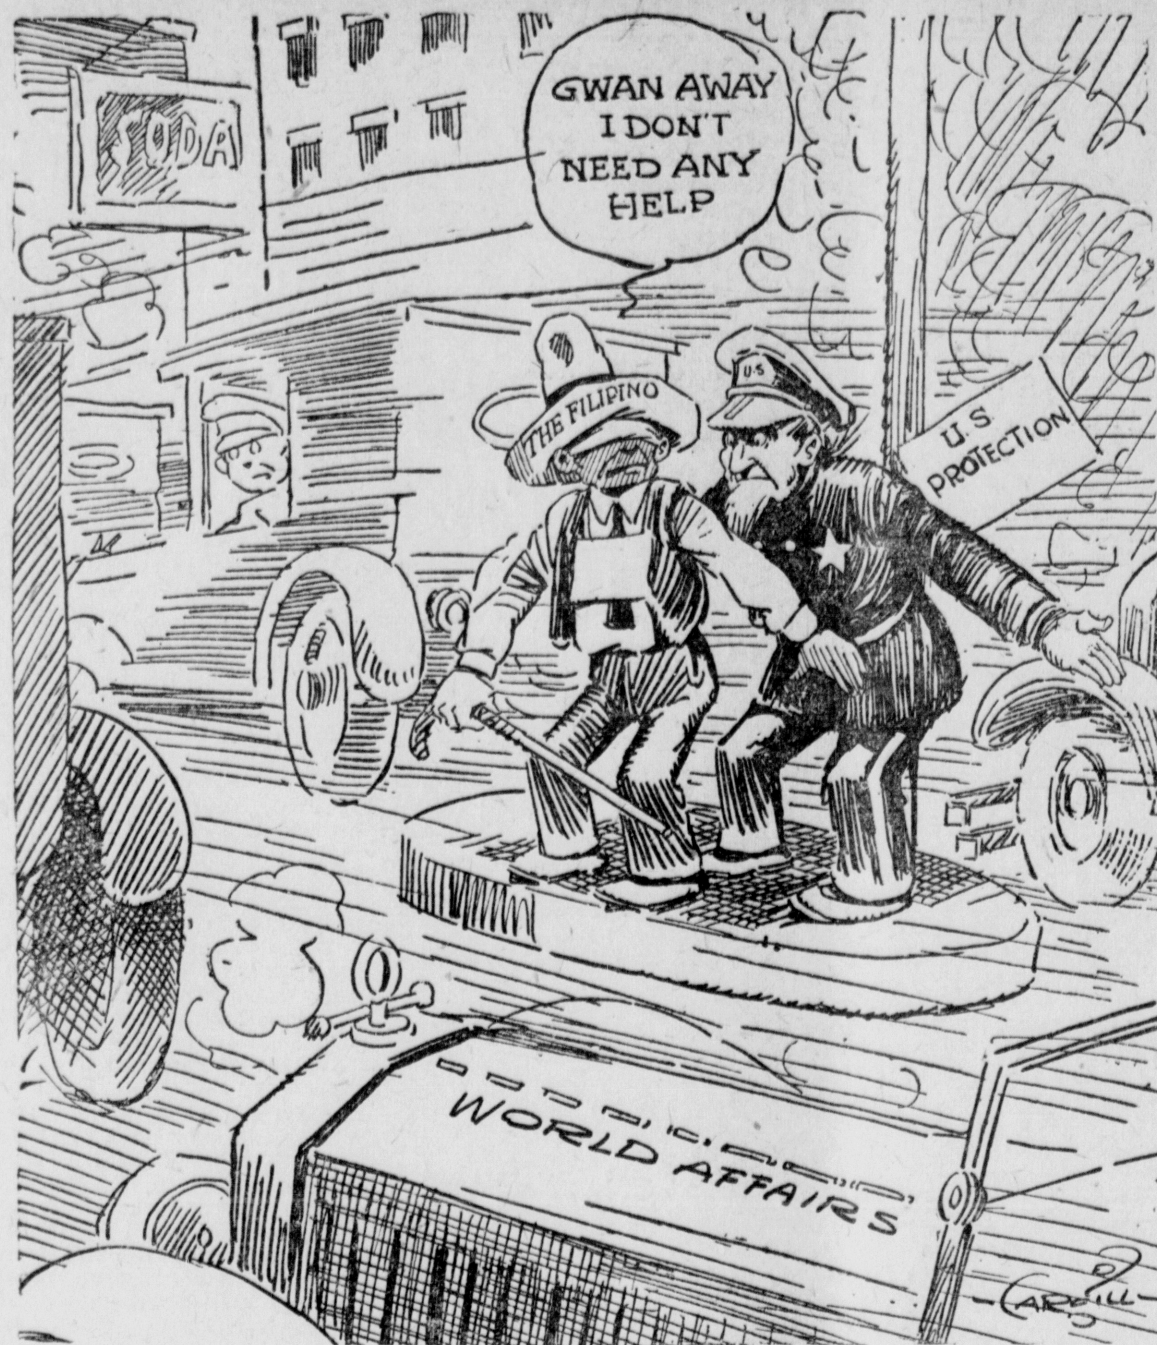

Sun was born in Toledo, in 1883 and started as a juggler while working in the Singer Sewing Machine Co. He was given a date by Somerville and Lee, vaudeville agents and later joined Sells-Poley circuit, later the Sells-Floto. He became treasurer, then circus manager. With his three brothers he started the Sun circuit with two wagons, a tent, camel and Gus Sun's juggling act. After seventeen years the show changed to cars and had 250 people. Then Gus Sun organized Sun's minstrels and toured the country.

In 1905 Gus Sun opened in Springfield the first popular priced vaudeville east of the Mississippi. The rest is history in the show business. The rise of the Sun interests from the first Orpheum with 200 kitchen chairs to booking connections with 250 theaters is outlined in Variety. At present negotiations are under way for expansion in the East with the Lack Linder circuit.

ing else in the pan) and let it melt and turn to a deep brown. Now add one-half cup of warm water; this will make the burnt sugar fizzle up and lump, but if you continue to boil it for several minutes you will find that the lumps melt. Strain and cool the sirup.

Next, begin mixing your cake as follows: Cream one-fourth cup of butter in a medium-size mixing bowl. Add to it three-fourths of a cup of granulated sugar. Stir in the beaten yolk of one egg. Then add the cooled caramelized sirup, and blend well. Sift one and one-half cups of ordinary bread flour with one and one-half teaspoons of baking powder and stir this into the mixing bowl. Flavor with one-half teaspoon of vanilla extract and fold in the stiffly-whipped white of one egg. Beat for three minutes steadily, then scrape the batter into a loaf-cake pan measuring about four by eight inches on the bottom with flaring sides two and one-half inches high. Line the pan with wax paper to avoid the cake sticking to it; when this is done, you need not grease the pan, as the cake batter is poured right onto the wax paper.

Slip the pan into a hot (but not very hot) oven. If you use a Fahrenheit oven thermometer, let it register between 400 and 450 degrees throughout the entire thirty-five to forty minutes of the baking. When done, the cake should be two inches high. Peel off the wax paper on the bottom, while cake is hot. Then frost as follows:

Caramel Frosting: Put one teaspoon of granulated sugar into a frying pan, let melt and burn, then add one-fourth cup of warm water and cook till the lumps have melted. Cool, then strain into a bottle and cool. Keep for other cakes and what remains after you have taken one tablespoon of the liquid from the bottle and place it in a small bowl. Stir in one cup of confectioner's sugar, flavor with a drop or two of vanilla, and spread on the hot cake.

ON Greene County History

XENIA TOWNSHIP BORDERS

The present irregular shape of Xenia Twp. has not resulted from the caprice of the surveyors who have platted it, or its residents, but seems to have arisen from the formation of the townships which have been stricken in part from its territory. The fact that certain petitioners wished to become residents of the new townships formed caused them to have the surveyor include their farms within the newly erected political units of the county.

Also the fact their farms lay in that part of the county where the military surveys obtained, made the resulting line of the new townships irregular.

It follows then that the western line of Xenia Township is fairly regular, but the one on the east makes the township look like a patch in a crazy quilt.

Beginning at the northwest corner of the township, the line runs east one-half mile, thence north one-half mile, thence east one and one-half miles, then south one mile and then east to the river where it turns abruptly southward after crossing the river a short distance of one-half mile.

The line then runs southeast three miles; south a mile, east in an irregular course; then in a line bearing somewhat west of south to a point not quite a mile south of the B. and O. Railroad; southwest one mile, southeast one-fourth of a mile, southwest one-fourth of a mile, southeast a half mile, southwest a half mile and southeast one mile to Caesars Creek.

Here the line follows the meanderings of the creek for three miles to the Peterson farm; then north three-fourths of a mile; thence a little north of west three miles; one-fourth mile northwest to the Columbus Pike; which it follows a quarter of a mile northeast; northwest one mile; a little west of north a mile and a half; north three miles to the Little Miami River which it follows a mile north east; thence north one mile, west a half mile, north one mile, west a half mile, and north a mile and one-half to the place of beginning.

This gives some conception of the broken boundary line of Xenia Twp.

It has been said before, but it will bear repeating: Nature is our wisest teacher.

New York

By Jack O'Donnell

Trust the New York mother to solve the problem of what to do with little Johnny or Mary Jane while she goes shopping. The latest stunt is to park the youngsters in the toy department of one of the big shops along the Avenue or Broadway. Every day two or three hundred little tots between the ages of two and six may be seen, maidless and nurseless, in the toy department of one of the big stores on Broadway. The mothers of these children know that here they are safe from speeding automobiles, kidnappers or what-not, and that only a team of horses could drag their children away from the scooters, dolls and other playthings. The storekeepers encourage mothers to bring their offspring on the theory, perhaps, that in their gratitude they will make some, if not all, of their purchases in the shop in which the children are parked.

New York is the capital of Lost Causes. Twenty years ago when South American revolutions were as common as clay pipes in Ireland, the honor belonged to New Orleans. "But," says "Tex" O'Reilly, soldier of fortune, who has been in every revolution worth mentioning in the last twenty years, "the modern, up-to-date revolution has to have money back of it else it'll flit over your right." So the leaders of revolutionary movements naturally come to New York to raise funds with which to start something. Result: The city is dotted with the embassies of Lost Causes or causes which will be lost if money with which to buy guns, aeroplanes, uniforms and munitions isn't forthcoming.

These "embassies" are hidden away in Greenwich Village garrets, tea shop cellars, in Chinatown, along the Bowery and in a few of New York's finest buildings. The United States Secret Service keeps close tab on them and if one revolutionist can be believed, so does Wall Street. Wall Street, this man tells me, takes a keen interest in revolutionary movements because of the huge amount of capital it has tied up in foreign countries.

One of the "smarst" house treasurers in the theatrical district fell for an old game the other day. He was behind the window selling tickets for the evening performance when a woman came up, put down a five dollar bill and asked for two balcony seats, the published price of which was $3.30, including war tax. When the treasurer showed out the tickets and $1.70 change the woman quietly remarked: "You've made a mistake, sir. I gave you a twenty dollar bill."

The treasurer looked in the cash drawer, saw the five dollar bill on top and said, "You're mistaken, lady. You gave me a five dollar bill. Here it is right on top of the other bills."

"The lady is right," said a man standing back of the woman. "I saw her hand you twenty dollars."

Instantly the treasurer realized he was being bilked. But, unfortunately for him, there had been a couple of complaints made by other patrons about loss of tickets and "short change" that same week, and he couldn't afford to take a chance of his employer getting another. With a smile he said, "You win!" and gave the customer change for twenty dollars instead of five dollars.

That night he told another house treasurer of the incident. When he described the woman his friend said: "My gawd! She nicked me, too!"

RAIN TODAY—SUN TOMORROW

It has been said before, but it will bear repeating: Nature is our wisest teacher.

I was out on a vast stretch of Western country the other day. In the distance a dark, black storm was gathering. In a few minutes it was fast furious in its spending. Towns were flooded, streams overflowed their banks, and bridges were washed away as though they had been made of pasteboard.

But the next day the sun came up in its old, beautiful way and the country about smiled and then went on its way as usual.

Storms, cyclones, rains, and earthquakes are only occasional. The sunny days, the days in which a man is able to work and achieve, are the ones out of which life and happiness are molded.

People who are always in a worry, a frenzy of disturbance, are not the ones who live longest and carry on the great burdens of the world.

The other day in a great city, a prominent man dropped dead on the street. During his life he was always trying to work up people to the appreciation of horrid conditions in everyday life. He could think of nothing else. He had, in fact, steeped himself in his own medicine so that when that heat wave came along, his excitable nature could not withstand it.

But Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Dewey live on! Both are great philosophers who do not get excited, but who have always seen the pleasant side of life and sought to distribute it.

Rain today—but sun tomorrow! Nothing unpleasant lasts forever. The law of nature is even. It is an intermixture from which we may all learn if we study the formula.

If you wear yourself all out about something that you think is going to happen, if it does happen, you won't have the strength to face it at all. And in most cases it doesn't happen the way you think it is going to anyway.

THE LOST TRUNK CHECK IS FOUND IN MITZI'S BAG

By Jay V. Jay

"You know, I think I am going to like this city very much," announces Mitzi as she arrives in Oklahoma City on her tour of the country, and sees a very smart costume ahead of her. She has had very little time to see anything besides the baggage room for Dad been conducting a search for the trunk checks which are conspicuous by their absence. Mitzi remains calm in the face of calamity, and appears smart under any circumstance. They all seem unconcerned with the luggage question since they are wearing their stunning unlined summer coats. Reading from left to right, Polly wears a tie of crepe roma banded in satin, it's of two shades of tan. Mitzi wears a coat of georgette with a tie scarf collar. A dress of a contrasting shade is worn beneath it, giving a two color effect. Aunt Sophia's coat with the dolman sleeves is made of crepe satin faced with a slightly different shade at collar and cuffs.

"Well, look and see if you haven't them somewhere," exhorts Dad to his companions. He's talking about the trunk checks, again. They are mislaid, according to Dad. They're lost, according to Mitzi. Searching in the newest of handbags is a pleasant task so they both start poking through the necessary vanities, lip sticks, rouge boxes and miscellaneous money. Polly's handbag is of pigskin with patent leather trimming. Mitzi's is the reverse—patent leather with pigskin trimming. Mitzi remarks that two color handbags are exceedingly smart. Wasn't it fortunate that they could get them to match their coats? Aunt Sophia asks: "What's this?" and points to the miscreant checks in Mitzi's bag. "That," replies Mitzi, "is a little compartment for bills that I never knew was there." Incidentally Dad secures the checks. Mitzi thinks it was worthwhile losing them just to find this division of her bag.

Tomorrow—Mitzi Remarks About Chiffon Flowers

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Jack Dempsey's biggest concern as he prepares himself for his fight with Gene Tunney or the next defense of his title against any opponent will be to find out how much has been taken out of his weapons by three years of idleness.

In training he can find out how good his wind is and correct any deficiency by proper exercise and diet. He can find out how strong his legs are and do more roadwork if he thinks he hasn't the proper strength. He can improve his speed and his boxing by sparring with fast and shifty partners.

But there is no way for him to recover any lost mental spark, the thing called co-ordination which makes the hand and foot respond to the eye and the brain automatically.

All the work he could do in the gymnasium or the training camp would not improve an eye that was one-thousandth of the second slow because the best of sparring gives him the real test or they

Not many crides give Tunney partners are not good enough to would not be sparring partners. a big chance if he meets Dempsey. They admit that Tunney is younger but they do not class him as a killing puncher. They admit that the long absence from the ring may have impaired Dempsey's speed, eye and boxing but they refer to the Carpenter and Firpo fights as proof that Dempsey can take it even no matter how many times Tunney hits him.

But, if memory serves correctly, Dempsey was hit by Carpenter and Firpo when he was stepping back or rolling with the punch. He didn't have to take the double force that a boxer gets when he steps into a punch or "runs into one" as the boxers put it.

Dempsey looked to be in almost perfect condition when he came to New York and seemed to be within a few pounds of fighting weight. He had speed in the ring and a punch on the bags.

But, some very good trainers pointed out that you can't tell about the inside. They still

INDIANS MANAGER CHALLENGES XENIA RESERVES TO GAME

Manager Minor on behalf of the Xenia Indians, is making a challenge to the Xenia Reserves for a series of three or more games to decide the independent baseball championship of the city.

The Indians' pilot declares his team is confident it is stronger than the Reserves, and is anxious for the title clash.

The Indians, it also claimed, batted against the pitching of Bob Herman earlier in the season and obtained three runs and eleven hits off his delivery. This is an improvement over the showing of the Reserves last week as Manager Cyphers' team was unable to garner more than one hit and an unearned run, although winning the contest.

Manager Minor says his team is constantly being reinforced by the addition of new players and fully believes his boys are capable of holding their own with the Reserves.

Kiwanis won the first and second games of the series but the Rotarians, with a revised lineup and added strength, are certain they will be able to emerge victorious in the consolation game Thursday.

Regardless of the result Thursday a joint Rotary-Kiwanis team is to be formed from the pick of players of both clubs and a game may be arranged with the newly organized Junior Business Men's Club soft ball team, it is announced. This contest may be played next week.

XENIA QUOT CLUB TO PLAY EASTWOOD

The Eastwood Club of Dayton and the Xenia Quoit Club will meet in a return inter-city match on the local grounds, E. Market St., Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, it is announced.

The match was hurriedly arranged Monday evening at the request of the Gem City club.

All Xenia quoit pitchers are asked to be on hand to participate in the affair.

Xenia defeated Eastwood 12 to 6 earlier in the season and follow this with a 10 to 8 victory over the Dayton Shrimers. In order to maintain its perfect season's record in inter-city matches, the local club must again win Wednesday night.

Over two billion smoked a month!

—men are backing natural tobacco taste

AND... there's only one way to get it!

ONCE you learn the refreshing goodness of natural tobacco taste in a cigarette, nothing else will satisfy you.

And the only way to get it is from the tobaccos themselves. It calls for the finest qualities of leaf, both Turkish and Domestic, and the rarest skill in blending them, but—man, the result does speak for itself! Look at Chesterfield's record—and "draw your own conclusions!"

INFERS KITCHENER COFFIN OPENED

LONDON, Aug. 18.—The Star today quotes Frank Power, British newspaperman, as denying that he deceived anybody with reference to the packing case alleged to contain the body of Lord Kitchener which was found empty yesterday.

That someone tampered with the "Kitchener casket" was intimated by Power in the interview attributed to him by the Star. The paper quotes Power as saying concerning the empty shell inside the casket: "It obviously cannot be the shell which contained the body and which I placed in the coffin in Norway."

At another point the Star quotes Power: "I have a clear conscience in the matter and am not seeking shelter behind the law. I haven't broken any regulation or made any false declaration. Neither have I hoaxed anybody."

PROSPECTIVE BOWLING TEAMS FOR LEAGUE SEASON PICKED

Members of the ten prospective teams to compose the Xenia Bowling League this fall were chosen by the ten high average men of last season who will act as captains by the method of drawing names of players from a hat at a meeting of the leaders Tuesday night.

In this way each team, on the basis of averages of players, will have approximately the same strength which will make for close competition and a spirited championship race this season.

Teams may play under any name the players may select, it is announced.

It was decided at the meeting to inaugurate the season September 7, with a double-header. Every team will be required to play twenty-seven matches which will bring the schedule well into March, 1927.

Three rounds will be played so that each team will meet every other one three times.

An important meeting open to every bowler in the city will be held at the Arcade Alleys next Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock. League matches will be played on every day of the week beginning September 7, except on Sundays, Saturdays and several designated holidays.

The teams selected, their members and captains are as follows: Captain Earl Gannon, Roach, Highley, Mallow, Luttrell and Snyder; Captain Arch Jeffries, Fred Horner, McPherson, Hughes, John Purdon and Free; Captain Lee Regan, Cox, Harry Jordan, St. John and J. McCurran; Captain Thearl White, Leahey, W. C. Horner, Buck and McCoy; Captain Ben Dica, Peterson, Swindler, Murphy and Dr. H. C. Messenger. Captain Charles Malavazos, Short, Whittington, Barnett and McKay; Captain Al Regan, Wagner, Anderson, Kniseley, Tull and Frame; Captain, William Smith,

"Not Possible to Classify"

By Mack Sauer

Bob Kingsbury writes me from Michigan that yesterday he visited the place on a Michigan lake where the sun sets each night. He says that it was from this particular spot that we got our first sunfish.

Wayne Smith of New Burlington says it has been raining so often down there and flooding the chicken coops so frequently that now every time it thunders the chickens fly to the tops of the trees.

TERIBLE

A queer, queer gink
Is Hiram Ration;
He gives his workers
No vacation.

These tales about the Scotch people being so tight don't get even a smile from me any more, since I have to get down on my knees and beg for a penny lead pencil from our bookkeeper.

TUT! TUT!

"What will I serve
With onions?" asked Jean;
Her husband said,
"Serve Listerine."

About the only time I ever think about this not being a land of free speech is when I pay my telephone bill. So I said to Mr. Cleaver, "so long as we have the telephone, death won't be the only thing that will take a heavy toll."

W must be on guard against any false optimism, but it looks as if we were going through the summer without any straw votes being taken as to whether our nation is wet or dry. Our prohibition logic is better than our lager.

RIGHT!

A guy who boasts
Of his Americanism,
Is full of prunes
And egotism.

We read in the papers that out of every four couples that get married today one will get a divorce, so we don't feel quite so sad when we hear that some young gentleman friend has taken unto himself a wife, hoping that he will be the lucky one out of four.

My wife being out of the city has sold me on the proposition that the restaurant cooks make the poorest coffee in the world but has not gained from me the admission that my wife can make good coffee. She'll kill me, if she reads this.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

ROSILYN RIDGEWAY learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an over-worked little drudge in her father's inn.

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, her husband, is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother.

FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, an aristocratic old lady, who saw poverty staring her in the face, and chose the easiest way out. Rosilyn loving her husband, knows that he is still in love with Lydia Harbroke, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying.

STEVE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway. She is in Paris when the news reaches her of Landis' marriage and she hastens back to the United States. With her goes Rupert Briscoe, a dissipated man of the world, who has seen Rosilyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and when the two reach New York, she suggests that they ask the young Ridgeways to dinner. She and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby through an apparent misunderstanding Rosilyn and Briscoe will be left alone together, while she will be with her beloved Landis.

Landis, finding himself alone with Lydia falls under her spell more. Some hours later that evening, Rosilyn who is bewildered to find herself spending the evening in the company of Rupert Briscoe, sees her husband dancing with Lydia—in his eyes a look of rapture. She believes he has seen her but is too rude—or ashamed—to speak. Briscoe asks her to go on to a night-club, and in a mood of recklessness she consents.

In Paris Van Vorst, realizing the reason for Lydia's sudden trip to America and hungering for her love, decides to use Marietta, a dancer and sweetheart of Briscoe's in connection with a plan. These two arrange to come to New York where Marietta is to vamp Landis away from Lydia, leaving a clear field for the elderly schemer.

Lydia, observing the turn of affairs, is none too pleased, especially when the dancer makes evident headway with Landis while Stevie, seizing his chance makes ardent love to Lydia. After a lavish revel in town the three accept Stevie's invitation to a party on his yacht the next day, although Lydia would prefer to have Landis to herself.

In the country at the Ridgeway place, Rosilyn, in a fever of jealousy and anxiety over the protracted disappearance of her husband seeks the solace of the countryside. While walking she believes she sees the slumbering form of Briscoe—a few minutes later the earth opens and she is plunged in a mysterious underground passage.

CHAPTER 49
ON THE YACHT

After the meal on the yacht the next day, the men stayed down below a little longer, and Marietta went on deck, and stood leaning over the rail, watching the myriad craft that made the water look like fairyland.

Marietta watched one family party in a row boat. Two little girls were assisting their father to unpack a picnic basket, while a pretty young woman who appeared to be their mother, was attending to a baby.

As Lydia came up behind the Spanish girl, the latter turned to her and pointed, said:

"There's happiness for you."

"Where?" Lydia raised her beautifully pencilled brows. She thought it was impertinent for a mere dancer to address her.

"Over there. The little family."

"Indeed?" The society woman's drawl was sufficiently insolent to put most "upstarts" in their places but it had no effect whatever on Marietta. "I daresay it would appeal to you, after the hard-working life you are forced to lead."

And then she added:

"If domesticity is what you're after, why don't you marry, and start a family of babies of your own?"

Marietta's lip curled.

"I suppose for the same reason that you don't."

This was too much.

"I fail to understand you."

"I think not."

Lydia stamped her foot on the deck with a gesture that wasn't up to her usual level of "good manners."

"Speak out, girl!"

Marietta shot her a queer glance from under her long, sweeping lashes.

"I don't think either of us would be much good to a man—a real man."

Lydia snorted.

"You flatter me! Speak for yourself!"

But Marietta only smiled.

The two girls stood together, looking down at the kaleidoscopic scene.

"Queer thing, life!" The dancing girl spoke monotonously, in a staccato accent. "How much easier to end it all!"

Lydia drew away from her. Temperamental creatures, these Spaniards; Was it possible this woman cared for Landis? If so, might not it be on the cards that she would seek to do some injury to a rival?—and she, Lydia, was a rival from Marietta's point of view, if the latter fancied young Ridgeway.

Lydia sought to "sound" the foreign creature.

"Mr. Van Vorst's an old friend of yours, isn't he?"

"Old in wickedness, d'you mean? Or merely in years?"

It was a disconcerting and impertinent counter-thrust, thought Lydia. But why antagonize the creature?

"I only meant, had you known him a long time?" she forced herself to say, pleasantly.

"Oh, so-so."

Lydia went on:

"I saw you in the Cafe de Paris, didn't I, with Rupert Briscoe, I've known him for some time."

She saw Marietta's finely chiselled nostrils quiver and a dab of color rise into her smooth olive cheeks.

She cared for Briscoe, then did she? Lydia would find out all about it.

But before she could continue, Marietta said:

"Yes, Mr. Briscoe is a friend of mine. That is to say, I thought he was. Since returning from Paris, I, however, have not seen him. I am wondering where he has hidden himself."

"Probably in the wake of a charming young married woman," replied Lydia with a light laugh.

"He's quite a squire of dames."

And then she added:

"Rich bachelors can pick and choose, and Rupert really is rather run on. But I shouldn't call him a squire. Should you?"

Marietta moved restlessly against the rail of the yacht, tapping a nervous tattoo with her long, slim fingers.

"I should call him as selfish as most men."

Lydia stared at her curiously.

"You're amazingly handsome," she announced, with an unusual burst of frankness and generosity.

"You ought to have a wonderful time, with your looks, and 'verve', and all that sort of thing. And being on the stage is always rather an advantage."

"Is it?" Marietta shrugged her shoulders. Then she said abruptly:

"It depends on what you'd call advantages? Money? Perhaps. A kind of admiration? Yes, maybe. But has it ever struck you—" here she wheeled around on her companion—"that I'd chuck the whole thing like a shot if a decent man whom I love, asked me to marry him?"

Lydia supplemented:

"If the financial inducement were strong enough, you mean?"

"I mean nothing of the sort," Marietta held her head up with a superb gesture of pride. "I'd marry a poor man tomorrow if I loved him."

"Then I wouldn't," Lydia eyed her in wonder. Was the woman serious?

As though she had read the thoughts in the other's mind, the Spanish girl said, quietly:

"You do not understand my race. We are emotional. You American women, you are cold. Amazingly cold. You marry for self-interest. This young man, Mr. Ridgeway, he is a bridegroom. Yet where is his loved one, I ask you? Where?"

Lydia repressed the impulse to blurt out:

"Probably down in the country at this moment, flirting with your precious Briscoe—if such a nincompoop as the Page chit knows how to flirt. Rupert, however, will doubtless do his best to instruct her."

Aloud she said, nonchalantly:

"You are interested in Landis Ridgeway then?"

The best is yet to be"

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women of middle age, say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Those who have learned through their own experience the merit of this dependable medicine are enthusiastic in recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

"I had been in bad condition for three months. I could not do my work. One day I read what your medicine had done and just had a feeling that it would help me, so I sent and got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had only taken half a bottle when I got up and started to do my work. It gave me an appetite, and helped me wonderfully. I can not praise this medicine highly enough. I am willing to advise all women and girls to take it, and they don't have to use rouge to look healthy. My two daughters are taking it now and one is also using the Sanative Wash. I am willing to have you use this testimonial and I will answer letters from women asking about the medicine."—Mrs. HARVEY TUCKER, 408 Walker St., Shelbyville, Indiana.

"I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books you give away and began to take the medicine. After the first few bottles I began to feel better and could eat better and had fewer headaches. At anytime that I don't feel good I take the Vegetable Compound again, as I always keep a bottle on hand. You may use this letter for every word is true.
